Monthly comment

The Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV – Listed Private Equity Fund (I EUR) had a disappointing February and declined by 11.9%, though it outperformed its benchmark by 100bps. The decline was driven primarily by alternative asset managers, reflecting concerns about AI's impact on software investments as well as liquidity concerns around certain fund structures in private credit, rather than a deterioration in reported fundamentals. These issues dominated sentiment even as managers released Q4 results showing steady improvement across key operating metrics, including fundraising, deployment and fee-related earnings.

Across segments, alternative asset managers performed the weakest amid sharp multiple compression. We believe the magnitude of the sell-off appears overdone versus underlying fundamentals, with minimal changes in earnings expectations and the share price decline largely attributable to de-rating. Alternative asset managers now trade at an average implied fee-related earnings multiple of ~15x, below levels seen after "Liberation Day" and, for many managers, even lower than the lows of the Covid-19 drawdown. We maintain a positive view on the sector, particularly European alternative asset managers, which tend to have lower exposure to software and private credit while trading at compelling valuations. We estimate that listed managers have, on average, ~4% of AUM in private credit open-ended products, and the exposure is even lower when considering only our portfolio companies. Finally, the fund has no exposure to BDCs, which were fully divested in October 2025.

TPG was among the weakest performers during the month. The company disclosed that roughly 11% of firmwide AUM is invested in software—toward the higher end of the peer group—which weighed on sentiment and overshadowed otherwise strong Q4 results. The manager reported USD 16bn in quarterly fundraising and USD 19bn in quarterly deployments, alongside record fee-related earnings and AUM. TPG also announced a new partnership with Jackson Financial, under which TPG will invest USD 500m for a 6% equity stake in exchange for USD 12bn of insurance AUM, expected to grow to USD 20bn over time. We view the partnership as strategically attractive and a logical extension of the firm's push into insurance capital solutions following the Angelo Gordon acquisition in 2023.

KKR, Ares Management and Apollo were also weak performers, reflecting their higher exposure to private credit and negative news flow around the BDC segment. However, for all three managers, BDCs represent a small portion of overall AUM and are held predominantly in permanent-capital listed vehicles that do not have redemption features. We estimate that exposure to open-ended credit products is relatively limited, at ~2% (KKR), ~3% (Apollo) and ~6% (Ares) of AUM. Despite the negative sentiment, we continue to expect fee-related earnings to grow organically by 10–15% in 2026 for the three managers, even assuming only a modest fundraising contribution from private credit open-ended products. The insurance channel, which provides structurally stickier AUM, remains a key growth driver, particularly for Apollo and KKR.
