Monthly comment

In February, global equity markets were positive, mostly driven by increasing optimism around the effectiveness of vaccination campaigns. The performance of Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV - Listed Infrastructure lagged the overall market, largely because of the weakness in the less GDP-sensitive sectors such as communication and regulated utilities. On the other hand, toll roads and airports were the best performing sectors, driven by expectation of a re-opening of the economy and less stringent movement restrictions.

Vinci, the French toll road operator, reported a strong set of FY20 results, exceeding expectations across nearly all metrics. Despite the traffic slowdown, free cash flow generation was only down 5% from previous year level, mostly driven by cost cutting initiatives and lower capex. Management also announced a higher than expected dividend and the liquidity position remains ample. Finally, there is increasing optimism that toll road traffic will recover quickly as soon as restrictions are lifted, similarly to last summer.

Equinix, the data center operator, performed negatively, although there was no specific negative news on the company. More generally, communication stocks remained weak in February, as investors continued to rotate into more cyclical stocks. Nevertheless, the longer-term outlook for communication infrastructure remains promising.

Finally, the French airport operator ADP reported FY20 results, which showed strong cost cutting and lower than expected cash burn. The operator also delayed the new terminal project at Paris Charles de Gaulle airport, which will not be needed until at least 2030. Moreover, increasing optimism around the effectiveness of vaccination campaigns, as well as a pick-up in airline summer bookings, improved the sentiment around the airport sector.
