Monthly comment

In March, global equity markets experienced a positive month, but Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV - Listed Infrastructure had an even stronger recovery, erasing all previous losses for the year. The infrastructure sector was positively affected by the news in relation to President Biden's USD 2 trillion infrastructure plan, faster recovery in global economic growth in 2021, and success in reducing infections in countries with high vaccination rates.

Waste Management was the best performer this month. The credit outlook of the largest U.S. waste operator was upgraded by Fitch Ratings. Furthermore, there was some industry research published, which expected that the 'smart waste management market' will grow at a CAGR of 15% until 2027. Waste Management, which had a rather sedate beginning to the year, operates within this segment and will likely benefit from this growth.

Atmos Energy, the U.S. regulated gas distributor based in Texas, was one of the weakest performers in February after an uncommon cold wave struck Texas. However, the company recovered sharply after it became clear that their gas costs would be less affected by the Arctic freeze than previously expected. Subsequently, the company successfully issued debt at an attractive interest rate. Furthermore, the regulator is likely to allow the company to pass on the rise in gas costs to consumers, enabling the recovery of these costs.

CCR, the Brazilian toll road operator performed strongly in March as the company signed amendments with the Sao Paulo state for two of its concessions, for a total value in excess of BRL 1bn. While such amendments have been expected for some time, the announcement was a positive catalyst for the shares.
