Monthly comment

Global equity markets had a choppy month in October. After the weakness seen in September, the markets recovered some ground, as companies started to publish Q3 results late in the month. Although the Fed is continuing its hiking path, the earnings results have so far been encouraging in most sectors, except for technology. However, political uncertainty became a more prominent theme during the month, with change of leadership in the UK and China continuing its zero-COVID policy. Although Brazil also experienced its share of political uncertainty due to the general elections, the Brazilian equities have had a strong month as the country seems better prepared at the moment to deal with higher inflation due to already high interest rates. The Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV – Listed Infrastructure Fund reported positive performance, driven by the exposure to Brazilian equities.

On a portfolio level, the best performing company during the month was Sabesp, the Brazilian water operator. The share price rebounded in October, due to renewed expectation that the company may be privatized under the new Governor following the elections in the Sao Paulo state. If privatized, many brokers anticipate that the company will be more highly valued by investors than under state ownership.

The French toll road operator Vinci also contributed to the Fund's performance in October. The company convinced investors with its results for Q3 2022. Revenues were higher than consensus expected, which is further evidence of Vinci's strong positioning. Most notably, the autoroutes' traffic levels remained buoyant despite higher fuel prices, whereas growth in airports passenger numbers continued to accelerate in the third quarter at almost all of the network's airports. Finally, the management maintained its guidance for FY 2022.

Definitions

This monthly report is produced based on information available on the last working day of the month.

Infrastructure

The term 'infrastructure' comprises all durable capital goods which ensure the proper development of an economy. They comprise transportation infrastructure assets such as roads, airports, railways, harbours, tunnels and bridges. However, they also include assets of the communication infrastructure, such as TV and radio transmission systems, antennas and transmission towers for mobile phones, satellite systems and cable networks. Infrastructure also refers to utility assets in the fields of energy and water, such as energy facilities for power generation and distribution, of gas and oil exploration and distribution, as well as other water supply and distribution facilities, including desalination plants and sewage treatment facilities. Finally, infrastructure also includes the provision of services in the fields of education and health, as well as public sector building facilities (social infrastructure).

Listed infrastructure

A 'listed infrastructure' company is listed on a stock exchange and its purpose is investing in infrastructure assets.

Total return

Total return is calculated according the standard BVI-method of the Bundesverband Investment and Asset Management.
