Monthly comment

In August, global stocks performed weakly and lost some of the gains they had made earlier in the year. Investors were worried about the Federal Reserve keeping interest rates high for an extended period, which caused some weakening in equity markets. This resulted in higher yields on long-term debt and a rise in the U.S. 10-year yield above 4%. Weak economic data coming from China also contributed to the negative market sentiment, despite the Chinese central bank aiming to stimulate the economy by cutting interest rates. As a result, the Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV – Listed Infrastructure Fund decreased in value, despite most companies in the Fund reporting good Q2 earnings – either meeting or exceeding expectation. Transmission & distribution and water utilities, which had been struggling in the month, still managed to report high single-digit earnings growth.

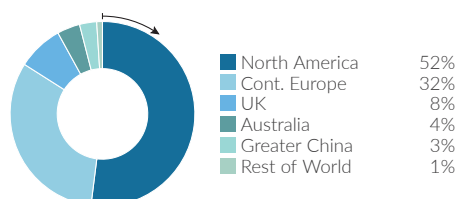

Social infrastructure vehicles, such as HICL Infrastructure and BBGI Global Infrastructure, stood out as the best performers during the month. The investments' NAV per share is expected to remain stable in the coming year because of the built-in inflation protection that balances out the downsides of higher interest rates. Additionally, these investments' focus on availability-based projects and regulated assets which makes them mostly unaffected by a potential economic slowdown.

Orsted, the global renewable operator, was among the worst performers during the month. The company warned of over USD 2 billion impairment to its US renewables portfolio, as supply chain issues and higher interest rates continued to negatively impact project returns, especially in offshore wind. Despite continued headwinds from rising costs, the competitive position is starting to improve with higher PPA prices and some players exiting the offshore wind market.

Definitions

This monthly report is produced based on information available on the last working day of the month.

Infrastructure

The term 'infrastructure' comprises all durable capital goods which ensure the proper development of an economy. They comprise transportation infrastructure assets such as roads, airports, railways, harbours, tunnels and bridges. However, they also include assets of the communication infrastructure, such as TV and radio transmission systems, antennas and transmission towers for mobile phones, satellite systems and cable networks. Infrastructure also refers to utility assets in the fields of energy and water, such as energy facilities for power generation and distribution, of gas and oil exploration and distribution, as well as other water supply and distribution facilities, including desalination plants and sewage treatment facilities. Finally, infrastructure also includes the provision of services in the fields of education and health, as well as public sector building facilities (social infrastructure).

Listed infrastructure

A 'listed infrastructure' company is listed on a stock exchange and its purpose is investing in infrastructure assets.

Total return

Total return is calculated according the standard BVI-method of the Bundesverband Investment and Asset Management.
