Monthly comment

In January, Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV – Listed Infrastructure profited from the recovery of the Chinese stock market. On the other hand Italian and Spanish assets performed particularly negative during the reporting period.

The top performer in January was China Resources Gas, one of the largest Chinese gas distributors. The company increased its natural gas sale volumes by 15% compared to previous year. Another positive performer was Kinder Morgan. The company reduced its debt load in the past year by USD 3 billion. Furthermore the US-American operator of oil and gas pipelines reported high interest from potential partners in cooperating on the Trans-Mountain pipeline, which carries oil from Alberta to the west coast of British Columbia.

In contrast, the French satellite operator Eutelsat, who was the best performer last month, contributed unfavorably to the Fund's net asset value. Sky, a provider of television and broadband internet services, is planning to launch a service without satellite dish, which lowered investor's outlook on future demand for satellite service providers.

Meanwhile, the share price of Aena, a Spanish airport-operator, increased its value in January as new details of the latest airport-regulations in Spain were published. The company has been offered greater flexibility to spend on investments during the period. This ensures a better control of cash flows, enabling the company to react more flexible to the expected growth of passenger traffic.
