Monthly comment

Equity markets remained volatile during April. Despite a positive start into the earnings season with most results exceeding expectations, investors' concerns were centered around inflation, interest rates and future growth. The Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV – Listed Private Equity suffered among this market trend and generated a negative performance. On a portfolio level, business development companies performed the best, as they generally benefit from a rising interest rate environment.

One of the best performing companies this month was the UK alternative asset manager, Petershill Partners. The company published strong results for the fiscal year ending March 2022, which exceeded management's guidance set at its IPO in September 2021. Distributable earnings increased by 57% mainly due to increased AuM but also due to a strong increase in realized performance fees, which accounted for approximately 34% of distributable earnings. Management updated its outlook for 2022 and expects USD 40-45 billion in organic fee-paying AuM growth, which is more than twice the amount raised in 2021. In addition, the Board announced paying its first dividend since the IPO and launched a share buyback program of up to USD 50 billion.

On the other hand, Kinnevik, the Swedish direct investment company performed weakly. The portfolio focuses on technology and became younger after the spin-off of Zalando, the German online fashion retailer. The company reported first quarter results and despite underlying holdings performing well, the valuation was affected by a de-rating of growth companies, which resulted in a 6% NAV decline. However, management remains optimistic on the growth potential of its holdings and used the recent market weakness to acquire four new holdings as well as one follow-on investment at lower valuations. The company benefits from a healthy balance sheet with decent cash to continue building out the portfolio.
