Monthly comment

Global equity markets performed negatively in August as investors remained concerned that the Federal Reserve will continue with aggressive rate hikes. While US inflation eased slightly in July, the Fed reiterated that it will continue to hike rates until inflation is better controlled, despite increasing recession risks. At the same time, European energy prices reached record levels during the month, intensifying recession risks in the region. In this context, the Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV – Listed Private Equity developed negatively, however, still outperforming its benchmark. Among sub-sectors, only the business development companies ("BDC") performed positively during this month. Some BDCs reported quarterly results and expect that rising interest rates will meaningfully benefit their financial results in the coming quarters. Although the performance of the remaining sub-sectors was negative, companies that published their Q2 results in August, continued to deploy capital, and generally reported solid results. The Swedish direct investment company Kinnevik, which focuses on investing in technology companies, was amongst the worst performers. Rising interest rates and inflation fears has caused valuation multiples for growth companies to continue contracting. Nevertheless, Kinnevik's permanent capital structure and strong financial position remain a key advantage for the company as it can focus on a longer-term investment horizon. The best performing company during the month was Brookfield Business Partners ("Brookfield"), which invests in businesses that provide infrastructure services, amongst others. The company reported good Q2 results. The portfolio remained resilient despite inflationary pressures and economic headwinds. The portfolio companies were able to pass through higher costs. Brookfield focuses on acquiring companies that have recurring contracted revenues, low ongoing capital requirements and high margin potential. During Q2, the company closed three acquisitions of companies that fulfill these criteria and started to implement value creation plans to grow margins and cash flows. KKR, the US-based alternative asset manager, posted marginally worse Q2 results compared to market expectations, and was amongst the worst performers. This was mainly due to a slowdown in KKR's capital markets business, which provides financing services to portfolio companies and clients. This business tends to be more volatile and fees in that business were lower compared to the previous quarter. Nevertheless, the company managed to increase AuM and management fees by 14% and 36%, respectively. Management remains optimistic and reaffirmed its long-term financial goals.
