Monthly comment

Global equity markets were broadly flat in February. After positive performance in the first part of the month, several higher-than-expected inflation numbers drove interest rate expectations and moderated investor's sentiment during the second part of the month. The Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV - Listed Private Equity Fund performed well in February. Business Development Companies, which benefit from rising interest rates, contributed the most to the fund's positive performance.

The US-based business development company, Owl Rock Capital, was one of the best performing holdings during the month. The company reported solid fourth quarter and full year 2022 results. Investment income increased 20% in 2022, driven by higher interest rates. Management remains optimistic and expects further growth in investment income in 2023 and sees the portfolio continuing to be strong and no deterioration in credit quality is evident.

In contrast, Brookfield Business Partners, a Canadian direct investment company focusing on business services and industrials, performed weakly. While management progressed well on its capital recycling initiatives and committed USD 2.7 billion to acquire several new businesses, existing portfolio holdings experienced significant volatility in their operating environments. Supply chains remained stretched and labor markets tight but management continues executing its business improvement plans and sees opportunities to further increase value.

Finally, TPG, the global alternative asset management company reported good full year 2022 results. Total assets under management increased by 19% to USD 135 billion. Although management acknowledged that the current fundraising environment has become more difficult and congested, it continues to see good demand from clients and announced several first closures. In 2022, the asset manager further diversified its client base, acquiring approximately 60 new clients and convincing more than 55 existing clients to invest in new fund strategies.
