2021 Q1 review

Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV – Listed Private Equity started strongly in 2021 and generated a total return of 12.8% during the first quarter. Market sentiment remained positive throughout the quarter and was driven by the vaccines roll-out, expectations of opening economies and President Biden's stimulus package. At the company-level, earnings reports were solid benefiting from increasing transaction activity and strong portfolio performance.

Alternative asset managers were the best performing sector and generated an average total return of 18% during the first quarter. The sector has held a record amount of dry powder and increasing investment activity generates significant carry potential in the mid-term as well as shortens the time to raise successor funds. Despite COVID-19, the managers deployed capital in line or even exceeding previous years' levels. Amongst the best performers was Blackstone, which deployed over USD 60bn in the past year. Fund-raising remained strong and secured future recurring earnings. Apollo Global stood out with inflows of more than USD 120bn, twice the amount raised in the previous year. Lastly, the performance of the underlying funds recovered well, in particular KKR's, whose private equity portfolios generated over 30% gross IRR in 2020.

Business development companies (BDC) were the second-best performing sector, gaining 14% on average. Most of the portfolios benefited from increasing M&A activity, for which BDCs typically provide debt financing. This resulted in strong loan origination and expected interest income growth. The underlying portfolios have recovered well, non-accruals have declined, and NAVs have grown on a per share basis. In addition, refinancing conditions for BDCs are attractive and many managers issued debt, expanding their interest spreads.

Fund-of-funds increased by 10% on average and posted solid NAV growth. The increasing investment activity resulted in managers reporting exits above NAV and proceeds could quickly be redeployed. ICG Enterprise Trust was the best performing fund-of-fund. Strong exit activity, at 2.4x cost on average, resulted in high NAV growth and a dividend increase of 5%.

Direct investment companies were the relative laggards but still increased by 9% on average. The underlying portfolios of these companies have a high allocation to defensive sectors including software, healthcare, etc. but during the first quarter, cyclical sectors performed better. On average, direct investment companies also benefited from increasing transaction activity and managers completed add-on acquisitions, which resulted in NAV growth. The positive market sentiment also resulted in some discount contraction, with Brookfield Business Partners being amongst the best performers. The company reported results above expectations and is exploring an exit for one of its main holdings, the battery maker Clarios. Management expects to generate a money multiple of 1.55x after a holding period of just two years. Another strong performer was Onex. The Canadian direct investment company is amongst the more cyclical holdings in our portfolio and benefited from an expected opening of the economy, in particular via their investments in a Canadian airline as well as an event company.

During the first quarter, we reduced our allocation to fund-of-funds after discounts have contracted and increased alternative asset managers, in particular managers with a high allocation to private equity where we see most upside. In addition, we adjusted our allocations within direct investment companies. We reduced cyclical exposure and deployed into the technology and consumer sectors.
