Monthly comment

Worries about high inflation and the path of Fed's rate increases had still weighed on the financial market in the first half of the month. This was exacerbated due to the fact that many of the extended rate-hiking cycles in recent decades have eventually led to recessions. Meanwhile, some strong earnings results and decelerated April Consumer Price Index data have boosted optimism among investors later, helping to pull major indices away from their lows of the year. Against this backdrop, Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV - Multi Asset Income decreased in value, despite the good performance from the second half of the month, which was primarily attributable to defensive sectors including utilities and social infrastructure as well as to energy stocks.

On a portfolio level, the US asset manager Apollo Global Management was amongst the top performers. The company benefitted from improving sentiment from its solid results for the first quarter boosted by the strong performance of portfolio companies as well as substantially increased fundraising and deployments. Compared to Q4 2021, which was a record quarter, inflows and deployments increased by 31% and 39%, respectively. In addition, the company reported tripled recurring earnings after merging with its insurance business, Athene.

In contrast, the US logistics REIT Prologis was negatively affected by the news that the global retailer Amazon would not only slow down its e-commerce operations but it also plans to sublease at least 10 million square feet over-capacity in the US, which effectively increases the warehouse supply in the market. In addition, Prologis made an all-stock offer to acquire its rival Duke Realty for USD 24 billion which fueled investors' concern that Prologis could issue more shares. The offer was rejected due to an insufficient price.
