Monthly comment

In November, Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV - Listed Income saw a slight reduction in the positive performance that the Fund has achieved since the beginning of the year. While US equity markets benefited from an anticipation of pro-equity market policies by the newly-elected Trump administration, the corresponding performance of equities in Europe and emerging economies were suffering due to concerns of reduced global trade and lower capital flows from the US. Meanwhile, Italian equities, especially regulated utilities, suffered further from uncertainties caused by the constitutional referendum in the country.

Union Pacific, the largest US railroad company, was the strongest performer over the month. Investors anticipate that President-elect Trump will be supportive of coal and oil-based industries, which may lead to higher railway carloads. Furthermore, on the back of its solid balance sheet, the company announced dividend payments that exceeded expectations, and the extension of the share buyback program.

In contrast, Veolia Environnement, a French water and waste operator, contributed negatively to this month's performance. Impacted by lower construction activity, the company had to revise its revenue guidance for 2016 after having missed the targets for the third quarter. However, it has maintained guidance for the next two years.

Among others, US-based business development company New Mountain Finance Corporation (NMFC) reported positive quarterly results. The company convinced its investors with a dividend yield of 10%. The dividends are fully covered by the company's net investment income while significant capital gains have not been distributed.
