Monthly comment

In October, global equity markets performed strongly, driven by the shift in investor sentiment as companies reported solid financial results. As a result, the MSCI EUR index rose sharply, primarily driven by energy, consumer discretionary, and tech stocks. Against this backdrop, Partners Group Listed Investments – Multi Asset Income performed well. All asset classes contributed positively, with US asset managers and real estate investment trusts ("REIT") in the lead.

One of the best performing companies within the portfolio was the US asset manager Apollo Global Management. The company reported fee-related earnings growth of +18% over the last twelve months and, more importantly, announced a bullish outlook targeting fee-related earnings growth of +14% and a doubling of AUM until 2026. In addition to the inflow from the insurance segment, management became increasingly bullish on retail clients and expects this segment to contribute one-fourth of the projected AUM growth.

Another top performer during October was Prologis, the US logistics REIT. The share price hit a record high on the back of solid Q3 2021 earnings: management raised FY21 outlook for core funds from operations per share by +15% and upgraded the capex guidance by more than 10%. The company maintains robust operations, with an average occupancy rate of 96.6% and high retention rate compared to previous years, reflecting the strong demand in the market. The stock was also upgraded or added to the conviction list by a few analysts.
