Monthly comment

Global equity markets fell in August as investors worried that the Federal Reserve will continue to hike rates aggressively to curb inflation, despite the mounting concern on potential recession. In this context, Partners Group Listed Investment SICAV – Multi Asset Income performed negatively, largely attributable to the weak performance of real estate – the most interest sensitive asset class in the portfolio. Globally, bond yields significantly increased towards the end of the month due to the above-mentioned hawkish stance on rates, which put downward pressure on interest rate sensitive stocks. Meanwhile, infrastructure fared better, with defensive sectors posting a relatively small loss. Lastly, listed private equity was the best performing asset class still buoyed by the gains from last month.

Despite the strong fundamentals, proved in the record low vacancy and mostly indexed rents from its Q2 earnings, Vonovia, the German real estate company, fell significantly in August. The decline was primarily driven by the German 10-year bond yield that spiked back from 0.9% in mid-August to 1.6% in late August. The current valuation of Vonovia looks attractive with P/B ratio at 0.6x, implying more than 60% upside from the current price, based on the fair valuation provided by the company.

Orsted, a global renewable asset operator, lost most of its gains from the previous month. Orsted reported disappointing Q2 earnings, with EBITDA coming in 25% below consensus. While the company upgraded its full-year guidance range slightly, it is likely to be largely driven by the bioenergy business, rather than its core businesses. Meanwhile, the offshore wind business underperformed meaningfully due to negative effects for over-hedging of the delayed Hornsea 2 ramp-up and higher balancing costs in the power price environment.
